What is a disability?

Under the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (ADA) a disability is defined as a “mental or physical impairment which substantially limits one or more major life activities.” Walking, eating, talking, breathing, writing, listening, and learning are examples of major life activities. If you have a documented physical or mental impairment, you may be entitled to certain accommodations and/or academic adjustments under the ADA. (<http://www.accs.edu/student-services.aspx>)

What does “substantially limited” mean?

A person can be substantially limited in performing a major life activity if they are:

- unable to perform the major life activity, or
- significantly restricted as to the condition, manner, or duration under which the activity can be performed when compared to the average person or most people.
